Teath Annual Convention in Session at Lynchburg.

MR. DANIEL BIDS WELCOME

President Sands Makes His Annual Address-Report of Secretary Shows Fine Growth-Address by Mr. George Bryan-Social Side.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
LYNCHBURG, VA., June 18.—The tenth annual convention of the Virginia
Bankers' Association began its deliberations this morning shortly before 10 o'clock in the Assembly Hall of Hill City Lodge, and was called to order by the president, Mr. Oliver J. Sands, of Richmond. There was a large attendance of leading bankers of the State, the hall being well filled with a fine looking and intelligent body of representative men.
An inspiring invocation was made by
Rev. James M. Owens, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.
On behalf of the citizens of Lynciburg, Mr. N. R. Bowman, president of the City Council, welcomed the association in an eloquent and appropriate address.

the City Council, welcomed the association in an eloquent and appropriate address.

DANIEL BIDS WELCOME.

The next speaker was Senator John W. Daniel, who received a hearty ovation. He spoke on behalf of the bankers of the city, and his remarks were frequently interrupted by applause. After a humorous allusion to the gentleman who had preceded him, Senator Daniel said: "I have come further to greet you than did my distinguished friend, for I only arrived here at 3 o'clock, and only stopped here on my way home to express the honor and gratification the bankers of Lynchburg have in receiving you.

"The press has been called the third estate, but a bankers' association in this age I would call a fourth estate if it did not put it in place of importance less than it deserves. America has been called the land of the dollar. I want to see old Virginia in a liberal and just sense the land of the dollar. There is no subject on which the human mind has more differentiated itself than the national currency. Money is the artifice of the human mind, and in all modern nations it is the creature of law.

"The social clubs of this city have swung their doors open to you; the street cars and the Casino are free; and while I am afraid the Virginia Bankers' Association are not for the free and unlimited coinage of silver, I am glad to say that in Lynchburg everything else is free and unlimited to you. "The opinion of gentlemen who deal

"The opinion of gentlemen who deal daily with currency and money as you gentlemen do is of more value than of those who deal only with it theoretically. It is this contribution to the wisdom of this subject that the country expects from bankers, the wisest and best results of the human mind. And in our modern life as one man is interested in another, so is one nation involved in the interest of other nations, so that mankind is appearing before us in reality as one great human family. What you may advise and do in Virginia is a subject matter which concerns not only Lynchburg and Virginia, but all the people of the United States and the civilized world."

Judge J. B. McCabe, of Leesburg, made the response to the addresses of welcome, and in happy terms appressed the thanks of the convention for the kind words of greeting.

The president of the convention Mr. O. J. Sands, of Richmond, then announced the following committees:
On Nomination: Tucker K. Sands, of Richmond, chairman; H. B. Trout, of Roanoke; H. L. Schmetz, of Hampton; M. H. Williams, of Chase City; W. F. Patton, of Danville.
On Resolutions: George J. Seay, of Petersburg, chairman; John F. Rison, Danville; W. M. Habilston, Richmond.

Mr. Sands then delivered his annual address.

After alluding to the year past as a prosperous one for the bankers of Virginia, and predicting that there seems to be little to fear for the immediate future for those who will conduct their business along conservative lines, he spoke at some length upon the "inadequacy of the financial system." and the need of general currency reform, making valuable suggestions in this direction. Other matters treated in this admirable address was the supply lien law, the Torrans system of land registration, protection from criminal operations, the work of the association, and the growth of banking in Virginia. Tabulate statements were given showing the growth of the banking business of the Star in the past two years to be an increase in capital of $2,503,841.3 surplus; $2,703,253.18 capital of $2,503,841.3 surplus; $2,703,253.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

At half-past two o'clock in the afternoon the association reassembled for further business. The afternoon session was very brief and few matters were attended to. One or two resolutions, which were of no general interest, were considered and adquied. The principal feature of the afternoon's programme was an able address on "A Lawyer's Talk to Laymen on Banks and Banking." by Mr. George Bryan, of Richmond, attorney for the association. Mr. Bryan's address was of a technical character and brimful of information and advice most valuable to the initiated.

THE SOCIAL SIDE.

This evening the association was tendered a reception at Piedmont Club. This elegant establishment had been elaborately and handsomely decorated for the occasion with palms, evergreens and flowers, and presented a most attractive appearance.

The big porch, with its tall columns, had pearance.

The big porch, with its tall columns, had been festooned with incandescent lights, the glow of which added brightness and beauty to the graceful structure. Over the porch in big letters of electric lights was the inscription. "Welcome, Bankers!"

The members of Pledmont Club left no stone unturned to give the visitors a genuine, old-fashloned Virginia entertainment, and that the evening was most delightful was the "animous verdict of all present.

C., was one which showed the speaker thoroughly familiar with his topic, "The Southern Country Banker; His Highest Duty," and was replete with original thought, brightened with many amusing incidents. In the course of his remarks he paid a graceful compliment to Senator Daniel, saying, "His manifest sincerity of purpose, lofty ideals, sturdy intergrity and devotion to his people have caused him to be classed with the patriots of the old school." Senator Hoar and exgovernor Charles T. O'Ferrall, were also favorably mentioned as men having the courage of their convictions. Passenger and Power Company May Be Compelled to Run Cars Under the Ordinance - Pure-Water Committee-Weddings.

No. 1102 Hull Street. 5

Several members of the Mancheste Council are under the impression that the franchise under which the Passenger and Power Company is working requires them to run cars unless interfered with by an act of providence.

The City Attorney could not be seen last night, and the question did not come to a head, but it is likely that the matter will be thoroughly inquired into and some action taken by Council, if the strike is not declared off within the next some action taken by Council Strike is not declared off within the next day or so.

The only thing that is causing the Councilmen to hesitate is the fact that by enforcing the ordinance, as they believe it exists, it will simply force the company to employ non-union men, and thus bring out a possible conflict between union and non-union labor.

This condition of affairs was the subject of much conversation on the streets last night. Judge Clopton will look into the question to-day, and will give an opinion at once.

The citizens who are put to great inconvenience by the tie-up are still looking upon the situation in a philosophical way. They look upon the long walk from Manchester and Swansboro to the Cedar Works or the Locomotive Works as a joke. The walk to Richmond proper is considered a mere bagatelle.
